

Faith Academy Programming Announces:

Sign Language Coming in March

There are many benefits to having children participate in sign language at an early age.

ASL is now classified as a world language, therefore, if a child speaks sign language, the child is considered bilingual. When children are taught English and ASL together, they are processing language using both sides of the brain. Research has found that the use of signs and finger spelling will accommodate a wide range of learning styles: “verbal linguistic,” kinesthetic” and “interpersonal.”

Using ASL is the representation of information through seeing, hearing, and movement, and the more pathways that are created in the brain, the stronger the memory.

Sign Language Class will be on Wednesdays from 3:00-3:45 at the school.
